57TH CONGRESS HAS SPENT TWO TRILLIONS.

Enormous Amount Gotten Away With
by the Administration.

Washington, Mar. 2.—It is estimated that when the 57th congress adjourns, on Wednesday noon, it will have appropriated during the two years of its existence, not less than $2,000,000,000. Some of this money has been set apart for the so much needed internal improvements, such as river and harbor works, public buildings, irrigation project, etc., and the increase of the navy, but many are ready to raise the charge of extravagance, claiming that the high tariff which brought big revenue, was a temptation to spend.

DAY IS SEATED.

Washington, Mar. 2.—The United States supreme court opened its session at noon, with the reading of the commission of Wm. R. Day, of Ohio, successor of Justice Shiras, and the administration of the oath as an associate. The roll has been called 45 times and the reading clerks, overworked and hardly able to make themselves heard, have been relieved by substitutes. During the first session of this congress, the roll was called only 51 times in a session of seven months.

Every effort has been made to keep the matter quiet, but it has leaked out. That a large number of guests will meet at the Italian embassy, for dinner, and then adjourn to the studio to watch the American representative of the Car try conclusions.

OREGON'S NEW SENATOR WAS BORN IN LIMA, O.

More Distinction Brought to the Best Inland Town in the State of Ohio

Through the Recognition of the Ability of a Man Whose Parents were Once Residents of Lima. Brief History of His Career from the Time His People Left Lima Until He is Elected Senator.

Again has Lima been brought into prominence through honors conferred upon a man who first saw the light of day within the precincts of this city when it was but a small hamlet in the wilds of an almost unbroken forest.

A telegram from Portland, Oregon, gives the details of the story in the following words:

The highest political honor within the gift of a state has just been awarded by Oregon to a native of Ohio. Charles William Fulton, elected to succeed Joseph Simon in the senate of the United States, was born in Lima, August 24, 1853. Iowa claimed 16 years of his boyhood, Nebraska 4 years of his early manhood and for the rest he is altogether an Oregonian.

Fulton won the senatorial fight on his merits. The contest continued through the entire 60 days of the legislative session and the final vote was not announced until 12 minutes past the hour of midnight, Feb. 20, at which time the legislature was supposed to stand adjourned. At no time during the contest was there a hint of unclean politics.

Fulton led from the start of the session, but at no time up to the last ballot did he poll above 35 votes, with 45 necessary to elect. In the last hour of the fight his opponents, who had therefore supported ex-Governor Geer, switched in a body to Harvey W. Scott, the veteran editor of the Portland Oregonian and admittedly one of the strongest personalities in Oregon affairs.

What influence the move to Scott might have had earlier in the session cannot be known, but it was now too late. For two ballots the Geer strength held out on the new candidate and then came the slump of a dozen votes to Fulton, enough to elect and two to spare.

Senator Fulton was himself a member of the state senate during the session. He participated in all the routine deliberations of the body, but modestly refused to appear at any of the joint sessions when his name, with others, was balloted on, until the last night. He then appeared in the hall and for several ballots cast his vote for his friend, R. D. Hume. On the last and deciding ballot he withheld his vote.

When Charles W. Fulton was two years old his parents moved from Lima, Ohio, to Magnolia, Iowa, where they lived for 16 years. At Magnolia young Fulton received his early education in the public schools. In 1871 the family moved to Pawnee City, Neb. Here Charles took up the study of law. In 1873 and 1874 he taught school and during vacations attended an academy.

Early in 1875 young Fulton determined to come farther West. He arrived in Portland, Ore., in the spring of that year, a total stranger and almost penniless. He secured a place as school teacher in the little town of Waterloo, and after teaching one term went to Astoria, where he has since made his home.

He at once opened a law office in Astoria, determined to practice the profession for which he had fitted himself, and on the money saved from the brief term of teaching managed to live until clients began to come. A few cases in court brought him to the attention of J. W. Robb, a leading attorney of the town and a manager of Republican party affairs. In 1877 Mr. Robb offered him a partnership, which was promptly accepted, resulting in great profit to both men.

The next year was a notable one in the life of senator Fulton. During its course he was launched in matrimony and in politics. On September 5, 1878, he married Miss Ada Hobson, of Astoria, and in the same month was nominated by the Republicans for the office of state senator for the district comprising Clatsop, Tillamook and Columbia counties, pitted against Dr. Dodd, a pioneer Democrat. The young Republican won out by the narrow margin of 70 votes.

From the day of his first service in the Oregon legislature Senator Fulton has been a conspicuous man in Oregon politics, and the recognized leader of the Republicans of the smaller counties of the state in their biennial legislative conflicts with Portland and Multnomah county, the seat of the largest population.

In the early eighties Senator Fulton served as city attorney in Astoria, and in 1885 was the presidential elector chosen to carry back the returns and cast the vote of the state for President Harrison. In 1890 he was again elected for a four-year term in the state senate, serving as president of that body during the second session of his term. In 1898 he was elected to the same position and ended another four-year term with the close of the session of 1901.

Senator Fulton has been mentioned as an available compromise candidate for the United States senate in previous legislative contests, but not until within the last year did his friends determine upon organization in his behalf. So effective was this organization made that during the whole of the recent session not one of the votes claimed for Fulton at the start broke away from him, save occasionally by permission to pay a compliment. From the beginning Senator Fulton himself was supremely confident of the result.

Save for his gray hairs, for he is now approaching 50, Senator Fulton is of youthful appearance. His smooth-shaven face bears scarcely a wrinkle, his eye is sparkling and his voice rings clear and hearty. While his manner is dignified he is easily approachable and exceptionally pleasing in address, both on the platform and in conversation. His friends confidently predict for him as rapid progress as is possible for a new man in the senate upper house of congress. Mrs. Fulton is a charming woman, graceful and tactful. She has always accompanied her husband to the sessions of the state legislature at Salem, and was with him during the closing days of the recent contest.

STANDS BY SMOOT.

Boise, Idaho, March 2.—The house has unanimously ordered the following telegram sent:

"Hon. Reed Smoot, U. S. Senator-elect from Utah, Washington.

"The house of representatives of the state of Idaho, extends to you the best wishes of its members separately and collectively. We view with profound regret the agitation against your being seated as a United States Senator, an office to which you have been chosen by the legislature of Utah in the proper exercise of its sovereign power. We believe the opposition to your religious belief is contrary to the American spirit demanding separation of church and state, and that this opposition contemplates violation of section 3, article 6, of the constitution of the United States."

JAILER KILLED

By Desperate Prisoner Who Made His Escape.

Olympia, Wash., Mar. 2.—Christ Benson, a larceny prisoner in the county jail, last night, killed jailer Morrell, and escaped. He took the officers' revolver from him and shot him twice. Mrs. Mills, the sheriff's wife, prevented a wholesale delivery, by holding the prisoners at bay with a shot gun.

The Weather.

Washington, Mar. 2.—Ohio, fair tonight; Tuesday increasing clouds.

WIDOW'S MITE PREFERABLE

Thinks Cardinal Gibbons, Than Great Gifts of Andrew Carnegie.

Baltimore, Md., Mar. 2.—Cardinal Gibbons, in the cathedral yesterday, delivered a sermon on "Perfection," and arraigned the widow's mite against the gifts of Andrew Carnegie and the devoted wife against the leader of society.

The Cardinal said in part: "The name of Andrew Carnegie is on everybody's lips because he has spent millions in founding libraries and in endowing universities. We are familiar with the names of a Marlborough and a Wellington, who led conquering armies to battle and victory and the spectacles command our admiration because they so forcibly appeal to our imagination.

"But how little thought we give to the unseen virtues that are practiced among us. How little thought we bestow on the humble missionary who silently makes the daily rounds of his parish, bringing sunshine to the home of affliction and pouring the balm of consolation into the bleeding hearts. "No one spends a thought on the heroic Christian who is secretly struggling with some fierce passion that is raging in his breast and is endeavoring to obtain the mastery over it. "Again in some quiet home removed from the busy scenes of life dwells a family who are for weeks and months contending with poverty and adversity and bearing their heavy burdens with sublime patience and resignation.

"I maintain that the private virtues such as I have enumerated contribute more to the sanctification of souls than the most brilliant public achievements in the cause of Christianity.

"St. Paul converted nations, it is true, but it was not his apostolic preaching that endeared him to God, but his private mortifications. This he tells us himself.

"The Holy Ghost pronounces the eulogy of the valiant woman in the Old Testament. What does the spirit of God commend in her? He does not praise her for her social triumphs. He does not refer to her as an eloquent advocate of female suffrage and other claims of her sex. No, but he admires her because of her domestic views. She was a devoted wife and affectionate mother, a benevolent mistress to her servants."

AN EXTRA SESSION

Of Congress Has Been Called by President
Who Sets Date March 5th, in His Proclamation.

Washington, March 2.—The president has issued a proclamation calling an extra session of the senate.

THE SENATORS

Make up Their Minds to Remain for Extra Session.

Washington, March 2.—Senators have today made up their minds that they will have to remain in extra session after the fourth of March, in order to ratify the Panama canal and Cuban reciprocity treaties, and have made up their plans accordingly. Mr. Morgan says he is willing to accept the full responsibility for a called session.

MARCH FIFTH

The Date Set by Roosevelt for Senate to Convene.

Washington, March 2.—In his proclamation, Roosevelt said the public interest required that the senate should convene in extra session. He requires that the session shall begin March 5, at noon instead of March 9 as predicted. President Roosevelt's idea in calling an extra session at this time is to afford an opportunity for the newly elected senators to reach Washington by the date set, March 5th. Although the purposes are not set forth in detail, the object of course is the ratification of the Panama canal and Cuban reciprocity treaties.

ALFRED KNAPP MORAL PERVERT

Of the Most Pronounced Type According to Opinion of Dr. Hoppe.

Record of Confessed Murderer of Women and Children Bears Out Literally, the Statement of the Cincinnati Specialist on Mental and Nervous Diseases.

Hamilton, O., March 2.—Alfred Knapp, who confessed to five murders when arraigned today, pleaded not guilty.

KNAPP UNCONCERNED

And Spoke With a Smile on His Face.

Hamilton, March 2.—After he had pleaded not guilty, Knapp was asked if he had an attorney. He replied, he had. The date of his preliminary hearing, will be decided upon at once. Knapp was unconcerned, cool and spoke with a smile on his face.

MORAL PERVERT

Of Pronounced Nature Says Doctor
Hoppe, of Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., Mar. 2.—Dr. H. H. Hoppe, of this city, a well known expert on mental and nervous diseases, went to Hamilton and made an examination of Alfred Knapp. His report of the investigation is as follows:

"The prisoner is a well developed man, apparently free from constitutional ailments of a physical nature, and with none of the usual facial characteristics of the moral pervert, of which he is the most pronounced instance I have ever seen. He is not a sexual pervert however. In my opinion he is guilty of the murders. I found one depression on the frontal bone just above the right frontal eminence, which may have been caused by a kick from a Colt as the prisoner avers. There is another depression in the region of the occipito-parietal suture, which may have been, and probably was caused by a fall from a porch, as the prisoner alleges. Neither of the injuries, in my opinion however, would render the prisoner irresponsible nor deprive him of the knowledge of right from wrong. There is a marked difference between the right and left sides of the face, and the position of the right eye and its refusal to respond to light by a test of the ophthalmoscope, clearly indicates a brain lesion of some kind. That the prisoner has

A Brain Disorder there is no doubt, but it is not such as to render him irresponsible for his actions. I heard the explanations given by the prisoner of the motives prompting the commission of his crime and I am frank to say I do not believe what he says regarding the murder of the Gebbard child and his last wife. The prisoner alleges that he has been subject to attacks of epilepsy, but the two murders mentioned cannot be attributed to such a condition for the reason that the prisoner admits that he was conscious of what he was doing when he committed these murders and that he feared punishment by the law. If these murders could be attributed to epilepsy the murderer would have no knowledge of what he was doing.

"I am of the opinion that all the murders were committed from the same motive—to evade punishment by the law for other crimes committed by the prisoner, while suffering from a constitutional disorder of the brain, is perfectly sane and responsible for all of his acts."

BLIND GIRL

In Feeble Minded School May Be Knapp's Daughter.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Mar. 2.—A 14-year-old girl, blind and feeble-minded, at the state school for feeble-minded here, and known as Maude Jones, is the child believed to be Alfred Knapp's daughter. Superintendent Johnson, however, is of the opinion that the girl is a daughter by a former marriage of Knapp's first wife.

MORE CRIMES

May Soon Be Admitted By the Inhuman Fiend.

Hamilton, O., Mar. 2.—It is currently reported about the jail that Alfred Knapp is considering another confession that will cover other crimes. Prosecutor Gard and attorneys now hold that it is absolutely necessary to find the body of Mrs. Hannah Goddard-Knapp in order to try the prisoner here.

Live Stock Market.

THE STAGE.

Any person living in New York, or who has visited the great metropolis for any length of time, cannot fail to be impressed with the sharp contrasts of life and architectural features that are seen in no other city. The great Bartholdi statue, with its gleaming light, looks down upon the vilest hovels in the slums, and the famous Harlem bridge, a marvel of beauty and engineering skill, spans rickety docks and water front debris, with here and there a rotting old canal boat moored to the slimy piles. Such scenes as these are realistically shown in the production of "New York Day by Day," which transforms the mimic stage into the panorama of life in the great city, where all that is best and worst, highest and lowest, purest and vilest, mingles in the everchanging whirl of existence.

The play tells a story of the most intense heart interest and appeals most directly to those who appreciate fact without exaggeration. Full of strong dramatic climaxes, with an abundant vein of comedy, scenically perfect and with a host of singing and dancing specialties, the production of "New York Day by Day," at the Fauror opera house on next Wednesday, March 4, should draw every lover of pure and wholesome melodrama.

Great spring tonic. Drives out all impurities. Makes the blood rich. Fills you with warm, tingling life. A spring blessing is Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. H. F. Vortkamp, corner Main and North streets.

AID SOCIETY.

For Constable. Daniel B. Miller wishes to announce his candidacy for re-nomination by the Republicans of Lima for the position of Constable.

It is impossible to keep an Ohio man down, particularly if he happens to be fortunate enough to have been born in Lima. The newly elected senator from Oregon, Hon. C. W. Fulton, just chosen to succeed Senator Joseph Simon, was born in Lima, Ohio, in August, 1852.

Yesterday's Gazette says: Taxpayers! Keep your eyes on the attitude of the city administration in the water works extension matter.

Last night's Times: "Will the Times please be more explicit in its statements? If the intention is to make a political issue the Times man had better think it over."

There is no scarcity of subjects which can be made political issues any of which will swamp the Republican party in Lima. The obstructive policy in regard to the water works extension, by which the Republican members of the council actuated by purely partisan motives retarded the work which the people at the polls had signified their desire to have done, would be an excellent issue.

And then the wide open policy which now prevails in this city would be an excellent issue.

Or the Timberlake sewer episode, the stench of which still offends the nostrils of the people, would be an excellent issue.

Or if that is not enough, the Watt Town sewer with all its corrupt features might be an effective issue.

Or rather than miss a good thing a royal issue might be made of the east High street paving, which was another of the jobs which a Republican council pushed through and paid for.

Or in absence of anything else the street paving lobby, with its entangling alliances would make a most interesting bit of an issue. Some of the developments would be of a sensational character.

There are plenty of issues upon which to make a merry campaign this spring, and whether it be water, sewers, or street paving it will be up to the Republican party to defend its representatives for the many acts of omission and commission which have been charged against the city administration during the period they have had supreme control.

CARD OF THANKS. Mrs. Henry Wollen, of east Euclid street, desires to thank her friends and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and after the death of her aged mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Opal. She is especially grateful to the Lady Macabees of Hive No. 42, and the employees of the Manhattan restaurant for beautiful floral offerings.

The petit jury has had an off and on time of it this term, it frequently being the case that a postponement would follow just when it looked possible for a trial. This morning both cases that were assigned, Alfred C. Hoover, vs. J. C. Van Atta and the National Supply Co. vs. the same defendant, were passed, leaving nothing for the jury to do.

No new cases were filed and the official camps around the sheriff's office had nothing pressing. In fact, it was a dull day all round in the temple of justice.

Executors Gave Bond. W. L. and Alexander F. Irick, Jr., gave bond today in the sum of $3500 which qualifies them as executors of the estate of Alexander Irick, deceased.

EXACT COUNTERPART

Is Ben Wade, Brother of the Condemned Murderer.

The trials of Ben Wade and Ben Landis may soon follow that of Al Wade. The state's evidence is in good shape, and Prosecutor Uley says he is confident of securing convictions in both cases. The developments in the progress of the trial of Al Wade have been of material benefit to the state, and it is the belief of the prosecutor's department that the cases against the other two have been greatly strengthened.

Ben Wade was calm as a June morning when the reporters visited him in his cell. He was enjoying a hearty supper and talked as gaily as though he were on a moonlight excursion.

"Yes I just heard about the verdict," he said. "Too bad. Al was a chump, though for talking about things he didn't know nothing about and he laughed."

"Wonder where I'll get my trial?" he queried. I don't know who will be appointed to defend me. I have asked for Sale M. Mulholland, but I don't know what I'll get. I hope they get at it soon."

Ben Wade shows no signs of fear and has considerable shrewdness.

ELOQUENT PLEA

Of Brand Whitlock, Kept the Jury on Anxious Seat.

Of all who were in any way connected with the trial, no one was more agitated at the moment when the jury deliberated with a verdict than Brand Whitlock, the brilliant young attorney and novelist whose play "The Man in the Red Coat" is being staged as the most eloquent ever heard in a Toledo court room.

When the verdict was read he grew pale and looked as though he might faint. For a few minutes he found it difficult to speak, but he soon recovered himself.

"I expected it," he said. "It was a hard case to defend. Our defense was upset by the confession of Wade on Thursday night and we could do nothing."

Mr. Whitlock declined to say anything regarding the nature of the confession. He later gave the newspaper men the following written statement:

"You ask me for a statement. What I have to say is found in the fifth, sixth and seventh chapter of Matthew. I hope your space will permit you to run it in full."

The closing of Mr. Whitlock's argument brought the jury face to face with their responsibility, and the impression thus made induced several of them to hold out for several hours for the mercy clause. He summed up the situation in the following ringing reminder:

"I have only tried to do my duty in this case, but I shall never forget this trial so long as I live. You will never forget it either. Thought will not cease while you live. When you are at home with your families you will think of it night after night and day after day.

If you determine that Albert Wade is guilty you will watch the day, when sentence is to be pronounced, draw near and you will watch for that other day when you will think this is when my head is to be put into execution. You will think of Albert Wade as you saw him here. You will think of him asleep on his prison pallet on his last night on earth or walking his cell waiting for the last dawn. You will be with him as the warden comes to him to read the death warrant, when he is led through the dismal corridor to the chamber that is filled with the presence of death, when the little round spot on his head is shaved for the electrode to rest upon, when the doctor provided by the state counts the failing pulse when the chaplain so generously provided by the state of ficially prays to God to receive the soul that men are hurrying out of the world, when the current is turned on in the presence of the invited guests. You will march with him up to the judgement seat and say to God, 'Here we bring you the soul of Albert Wade. We know more than you and we bring him, tried, judged and condemned through all eternity back to you who put him into the world.'

"Do it if you dare."

"Vengeance is mine I will repay, saith the Lord."

HIS LIFE'S HISTORY.

Wade was Married in Lima and was Twice Sent to the Penitentiary from Here.

Al Wade's life has been linked rather closely to Lima, and there are a number who can recall the time he spent in this city. According to his own confession he was born and raised in ignorance and is a full fledged type of the degenerate.

Acting on his positive assertion that he would tell the whole truth concerning the Sullivan murder, Wade was brought out from his cell and in the presence of several officials and a representative of the Toledo Times the condemned recited much of his early history, but did not throw any additional light on the crime for which he has been convicted.

"I'm a going to tell the truth, as God is my judge," he said, by way of introduction to his story. "I've lied before. I never did much more than lie. I wanted to do good, but somehow they would not let me. You'll hear the whole truth whether you believe it or not. It will be the same story that I'll tell when they kill me, an innocent man and no one knows better that I'm innocent than my brother Ben is there."

"I'll be 42 years old on Sept. 16, of this year. I was born in Cincinnati. I think it was on a farm, but I can't remember. My father is dead. He committed suicide. My mother is living and is married again. Her name is Mrs. Luzina Smith and she lives in Dayton. I have a brother, John Wade, in Lima. He is a pipe fitter. Another brother, Charlie, is living in Dayton and driving a delivery wagon. I think then my other brother is Ben, here in jail. He is the baby boy. I'm the oldest. I have two sisters, Mrs. Oren at Puch of St. Ita, Nebraska and Mrs. Anna Booth in Lima. They are nice ladies."

"I never had a chance to get much schooling, for when I was a little bit of a youngster, I had to work at cutting wood and corn and sometimes it nearly killed me, so young was I. I can read a little, but it isn't because I was taught and had a chance when I was a boy. I learned it all in the penitentiary."

"That's right," said the sheriff, "they told us at the pen that the Wade boys were good students and anxious to learn."

Continuing Wade said: "My father was taken quite sick after we moved to Lima and I worked hard to pay off $50 on a lot and did it, too, so that my mother could own it. I built my mother a nice home and she owns it today. I ain't telling you this to try and make believe that I'm just a good fellow. People will think I've always been a criminal. I haven't though. I've always wanted to do the right thing, but somehow or other I just couldn't."

"Ben and I came to Toledo about three years ago and went to Landis' house. He told me then he was straight as I said I was tired of being crooked. I found, though, he was stealing chickens. Up to the time I met him I hadn't done anything worse than steal whips or melons or things like that. I wasn't a real good crook."

"Yes, I was sent up from Lima about seven or eight years ago for three cars for burglary, but I never did that crime. The man who did it was Wm. Kemp, some people called him Bill Barber. He said I was in it, though, and for saying it he got off with two years and six months, while Ben and me got three years. The crime was committed in Wapakoneta, but we was sent to the pen from Lima. On his death bed Kemp confessed that I was innocent, and said 'Now that I'm going to tell you must turn Al out. He's innocent.'"

Stole a Horse.

"A year and a half after I got out I was sent down again, from Lima, for horse stealing. I was guilty of that all right, but I didn't want to steal the animal. Landis made me do it at the point of a gun. Before that I had always stayed on the road with the team but this time he made me untie the horse, but as soon as I got him out Landis took him again. When I told Landis that I didn't steal the horse, he pointed a gun at me and said 'You'll never make a good crook. If you don't do it I'll put you where I wish.'" put Grasshopper." He told me and my wife and her sister that he had killed a man by the name of Grasshopper, and put the body in a coat chute.

"I told Ben I didn't like the life we were leading, but he only laughed and said 'Why do you want to be such a calf? Why, it's an easy way to make money.' That was the baby brother I used to spank for being bad and sent him to school, and then to think he'd act like this and not tell all about it and save me. I tried to do all I could for my brothers and sisters, and my sisters will tell you as they told Sheriff Newton, that I was a father to them all. You won't find any of them believing that I am guilty of this awful crime."

"I was married in Lima. I think it must have been about thirteen years ago. I can't remember dates. Her name was Mary Nott. She was a good woman. Every one who knew her said that and the sheriff knew it. She is in Mishawaka, Ind., working in the Orphans' Home and my four little ones are with her. Their names are Nellie 13, Hazel, about 11, Lulu, about 10 and the little boy, Earl, about 6 years old. Won't it be awful for those innocent little things and their poor mother?"

HOW TO BECOME BEAUTIFUL

To Perfect Your Figure.

A famous physician, in speaking of health, beauty, and a good figure, said:

"In my experience many American women have not the strength to take up outdoor sports, many lack the inclination for active physical exertion, household cares or office work—they feel languid, tired and worn-out by the weaknesses so common to their sex. Some women have household duties which keep them shut up at home. For all such persons I should advise a few simple daily exercises, with light dumbbells, devoting only ten minutes of the day to it at first, and gradually increasing it until they find that their whole being is stimulated and strengthened by it. If the young girl—or the matron—is troubled at certain periods with irregularity, weakening drains, and backache—perhaps faint and dizzy spells—then she should take something medicinally to correct these faults. Nothing could be better than a prescription which Dr. R. V. Pierce used in his large practice for many years, in the diseases of women. This 'Favorite Prescription' of Dr. Pierce has had an immense sale for the past thirty-six years, because of its uniform success in the cure of women's diseases, and because of the many thousand women who have attested to its merit. Being made entirely of extracts of roots and herbs, without alcohol, it is perfectly harmless to the most delicate system, and the best ready-to-hand remedy in the market."

"To insure perfect health, every tissue, bone, nerve, tendon, or muscle should take from the blood certain materials for its nourishment and growth. Every organ must have its period of activity and of rest, so as to circulate the vital fluid in a proper manner to nourish every part. This is why I believe in advising every woman to take gentle exercise out of doors or indoors. If the functions are not regular or the pains are severe then she should at once use a reliable remedy."

Mrs. A. BELVA, of Rockland, New Brunswick, said:

"I suffered more than a year from nervousness and functional derangement. Had pains in the left side of abdomen all the time. Some days could hardly get around. Kept my bed about half the time. I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and got his advice for which I have ever been thankful. I began taking 'Favorite Prescription' right away as he advised. It makes me sleep well at night which I never did before, and I feel rested. Can truthfully say Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has cured me."

Mrs. O. O. SCRIPTURE, of Prescott, Arizona, said:

"Words cannot express how grateful I am for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me. For nearly ten years I was a great sufferer with ulceration and sickness peculiar to women. I doctored for several years; got no better until I began taking the 'Prescription'. Now I can stand on my feet and work hard all day. I feel that life is worth living, and shall always recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines."

ADVICE TO MARRIED WOMEN. You should have a good medical book that tells you about anatomy, wifehood and motherhood. Read Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It contains over 1000 pages. ### A SEVERE COLD FOR THREE MONTHS.

The following letter from A. J. Nushbaum of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story. I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist prescribed a course of medicine, and a physician prescribed for me yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar and eight doses cured me. Refuse substitutes. For sale by H. P. Vortkamp, corner North and Main streets.

An Interrupted Story.

Captain Williams, a jovial Irishman known everywhere as "Boh", used to be a favorite in Dublin society many years ago. His stories were famous. One day an incident, and he would set it out to the general admiration. One evening he went upon the club and began telling the true tale of his misadventure, and his daughters from a dangerous situation into which their spirited horses had brought them. "I married the ladies," said he, "and I quoted the horses. And the gratitude of the ladies. Me boys, I shouldn't be surprised if her ladyship left me." At that moment a little Irish page in livery appeared.

Dodging an Interview.

A young reporter once called to interview Senator Quay and found him reading. After formal greetings had been exchanged the senator said: "Do you play poker? Of course you do. Once in a while. Then you will find this one of the best poker stories you ever saw," handing the newspaper man a book. The reporter out of politeness read a page. "Ah," said the senator, "if you are interested. Take the book along and read it at your leisure. Good evening." And the dazed young journalist was out on the sidewalk before he could cover his breath.

It's Never Given Away.

"Pa," said Johnny, who is a persistent knowledge seeker, "what is a law giver?" "There isn't any such thing, Johnny," replied the old gentleman, who had been involved in considerable litigation in his time. "But this book says that somebody was a great lawgiver," persisted the youngster.

"Then it's a mistake," rejoined his father. "Law is never given; it's retained in very small quantities at very high figures."

Blanche Hauck as a Drummer.

Mme. Blanche Hauck was once singing at the Berlin court opera in Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment." Emperor William I., after the opera, called her into his presence and told her she had sung very nicely, but that her drumming was the daughter of the Regiment she had to play the drum, was very bad. Next morning a drum major of the First Grenadier regiment called at her hotel and said he had come to give her a drum lesson. The diva was bound to accept the instruction and learned the whole art of drumming in a couple of dozen lessons. Then the kaiser sent to ask how she was getting on, and hearing that she had made excellent progress, he commanded a performance of "A Daughter of the Regiment." Mme. Hauck acquitted herself excellently in the drumming scene, and the kaiser complimented her warmly, sending her next day a real official military drum with a silver plate and inscription.

Well Again.

The many friends of John Bount will be pleased to learn that he has entirely recovered from his attack of rheumatism. Chamberlain's Pain Balm cured him after the best doctors in the town (Monon, Ind.) had failed to give relief. The prompt relief from pain which this ointment affords is sold by Wm. M. Melville, old post office corner.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the two year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 north Tenth street, Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which quieted her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. For sale by Wm. M. Melville, old post office corner.

parrot trust will be a sad blow at New York's swif society.

DANGERS OF PNEUMONIA.

A cold at this time if neglected is liable to cause pneumonia which is an often fatal, and even when the patient has recovered the lungs are weakened making them peculiarly susceptible to the development of consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar will stop the cough, heal and strengthen the lungs and prevent pneumonia. For sale by H. P. Vortkamp, corner Main and North streets.

BY HELP OF SUE

(Copyright, 1932, by the S. S. McClure Company.)

"Come, Jed; don't be a fool about it now."

"Sue, I'm afraid they'll catch us. It's too risky." The boy shrank back in the doorway of the humble brown cottage.

"Risky?" cried his sister scornfully. "Who pulled you out of the airhole? Who near lost his own life for your miserable little skin? You come along!"

Still the small brother paused, nervous, irresolute, glancing at the starlit sky.

"It's so light," he muttered, "an' ma an' pa's likely to come home any time."

"An' boy yet," Susan Bates' ill-shod little foot tapped hard on the stone step, her voice ringing angrily. "I'm waiting," she said.

"I—don't—know!"

Two strong brown hands shot out and shook him fiercely. "I'll go!" articulated Jedebub gaspingly.

"That's right; pick up the tools by the gate. Get your gun first. Don't whimper, Jeddy. I'll carry the saw."

In the shadow of the rock maples the two stole silently, then off the road by the pasture fence, along the row of chokeberries and brush into the lane leading to Munn's barn.

"Careful, now," whispered the girl, bending her little young form in crouching watchfulness. "He's in the second stall, eh?"

"Yep," Jed shuddered. "Crawl up on your knees. Don't mind the dirt. There! They'll never see us. The house is rods away. Give me that chisel!"

The crack between the old barn boards widened. "Chip, chip."

"The saw now, Jed. I'll have to use it."

"You'll make an awful noise."

"Shut up!" The moonlight cast a profile against the gray wood—a girl's bare head, the upturned nose, the round set of the firm jaw, the curly mass of hair. To the boy it seemed uncanny, quivering there. He shivered again.

The saw rasped slowly through and squeaked on a nail. Susan's face was white as her dark eyes stared wildly at her cowering companion.

Again, eighteen inches above, then the next plank; that was easier now. The pieces were removed; then a careful silence, listening.

"I can get through, Jed. Thank goodness, we've got you in! I'll call him now. Sam!" The low voice trembled into the dark interior, mingling with the sound of cud chewing cows and restless animal movement.

The young horse that wrenched at his bonds, striving to rise.

"Who's that?" with a note of hope in his strained voice.

"It's me—Sue. Where are you? Keep talking, not too loud!"

"Over here in the stall. I'm tied." "Your knife, Jeddy. Here!" She withdrew her head, gave him a quick caress. "Take the things and scoot. She whispered. "You're safe."

Five minutes later a man, cramped and blinking, crawled outside the aperture. "Hurry, Susie," he pleaded. "They're gone for an officer. I expect 'em any minute."

"Right away!" The girl groped in the musty blackness. "I've got it—Munn's saw. Scatter those chips and scrape up the sawdust. Lucky I knew where he kept it. Now, Sam."

He helped her out. Together they crawled cautiously away through the lane, through the pasture by the sheltering saplings on to the great clump of pines. Safe!

Before them rose the rugged domes of the Taconic fastnesses all for such as Samuel Willey. He laughed in triumph, glancing at the prospective wrath of his captors. "Tomorrow night I'll be in Massachusetts," he grinned. "Guess I'll work south."

His rescuer was fumbling at her pocket. "Here, Sam! It's the best I could do—only bread and butter. We didn't have any meat."

"My God!" cried Willey, with sudden, broken words. "You thought of that, too, Susie! Oh, I ain't worth all this!"

Shipping the poor little package into his coat, he held out his arms, and the girl nestled happily, her face buried in his rough blue flannel shirt, open at the tanned, muscular throat.

"I'm glad I could do it, Sam," she breathed. "You are worth it. You know what you promised."

Something warm and wet fell on her cheek. She looked up amazed. The man was crying. It could not be.

"Why, Sam—why, Sam, dear?"

"By the Lord, Susie, I'll quit the business. I ain't far in. It's just because I love a horse. You know I ain't bad. Will you—will you—if I go way off—Canada or out west—can I make a home—will you come? I'll have to change my name."

He was in deadly earnest, holding her tightly.

"I'll go anywhere—o-h-h!" She sobbed hysterically for a moment, then smiled up at him in the faint moon glow. "I'm willing to change my name, too," she said.

"Busted his cords, found my saw an' cut loose," observed Caleb Munn, stroking his nose. "Thought I had him fast."

The startled group burst into exclamation.

"Waal," pursued Caleb, "along's I got my horse back nuthin's lost 'ceptin' Sam. An' he ain't a mean feller. I dunno what the rest of you thinks, but as fer me, dermed if I ain't glad on't. Come on up ter the house, boys, an' hev some cider."

ELLIOT WALKER.

Animal Superstitions.

There are many animals that the superstitious consider ill-lucky to kill. Among them may be mentioned a lady bird, a martin, a robin, a stock and money spider, while to kill a woman means that you will break a bone before the year is out. Many animals are also supposed to herald death, and superstitions in this direction are so numerous that only a few can be mentioned here. The most commonly known is the clicking or tapping of the beetle called a death watch, which is reckoned as an omen of death to some one in the house.

The howling of a dog at night near a house is supposed to predict the death of a sick inmate, as also the setting of a white pigeon on a house bodes death to some one in the house, while, again, an old saying among the superstitious runs, "No person can die on a bed or pillow containing the feathers of a white pigeon."

That the gnawing of furniture by rats presages death is also a common superstition. To meet certain animals is considered lucky, while to meet others is the reverse. For instance, to meet a sow with a litter of pigs is very lucky, but it is unlucky if a sow crosses a traveler's path. To meet a vessel is lucky, but should a bare run across the road in front of you it augurs bad fortune.

Passed the Bottle Too Quickly.

Will Low, the painter, told a story of the Latin quarter days of Robert Louis Stevenson. Low and Stevenson were great friends in their youth. Their friendship indeed continued up to the time of the writer's death.

"Lous," said the artist, "was no less diplomatic than brave. He could be fiery, and he could also be gracious and pacific. One night, I remember, we sat in a garden in Montmartre. The red wine had been flowing pretty freely, and one of our party got heated and aggressive."

"Finally some one said a thing that this fighting chap disliked. As soon as the words were spoken he grabbed up a bottle and hurled it at the other's head. It was a strong, true shot and would have hit the mark had not Stevenson sprung to his feet and caught the missile."

"Tut, tut, George," he said to the thrower; "tut, tut. If the bottle is passed so quickly, none of us will be able to stand out the evening."—New York Tribune.

Reason to Be Happy.

What is the use of being at odds with the world? What is the use of being blue and despondent? The world is full of trials for us all—has plenty of trouble and worry to hand out even to the best of us from time to time. But there would be no need for men and women—we could all be babes—if there were no great life problems to solve, no burdens to bear, no sorrows to live down. These are the balance wheels of life. They are the trials we have to face in order to strengthen us and broaden us to the opportunities and the real happiness that riches do not command nor poverty bar.—New York Mail and Express.

The Butler Was In Doubt.

The recent St. Andrew's dinners, according to the Westminster Gazette, have been noteworthy for the profusion of Scotch stories, which in several cases fairly set the tables in a roar. Some of them have an ancient ring, but there is one that is perhaps not generally known. A doctor was attending a dangerous case where a Scotch butler was engaged. On calling in the forenoon he said to Donald, "I hope your master's temperature is much lower today than it was last night." "I'm not sure," replied the butler, "for he died this morning."

An Authority.

Peter McArthur was once talking with a friend when he quoted another man as a financial authority. His friend disputed the right of the person quoted to be considered an expert. Mr. McArthur insisted that the man had a right to speak like an oracle.

Strained Relations.

It took place in a dairy. The dairymaid was pouring large quantities of milk through a fine wire netting. There were microbes in the milk. Other microbes by the hundred were sitting on the edge of the crock and gaily looking on.

Science to the Rescue.

Housekeeper—Has any way been discovered to kill the pests that destroy carpets? Great Scientist—Yes, madam. Take up the carpets, hang them on a line and beat them with a heavy stick. "Will that kill the insects?" "Yes, madam, if you hit them."

After the Fact.

What a pity it is that our learned anthropologists never discover that a man has criminal eyes, mouth, ears and nose until after he has committed a murder! Oh, science, how many frauds are perpetrated in thy helpless name!—New York Press.

Painless Pulling.

Sufferer—Do you pull teeth without pain? Dentist—Well, not always. I sprained my wrist last time I pulled a tooth, and it hurts me yet occasionally.

It makes some men prouder to be the friend of a rich man than it makes other men to be rich.
